

ACT - Artists connecting in Transition

Assistance, creativity and support environments for artists whose practice has been interrupted by forced migration

Artists Connecting in Transition (ACT) is an international programme aimed at creating assistance, creativity and support environments for artists whose practice has been interrupted by forced migration.

Funded by the British Council, ACT is a unique cultural collaboration for art and production professionals, centred on artistic practice and international exchange. It is framed in the main global challenges and inequalities around forced migration, exile and displacement. The programme's central approach is based on collaboration and learning.

ACT is hosted by D6: Culture in Transit (UK), Arthereistanbul (Turkey), MedeArts (Jordan) and the Fanak Fund, which works in Arabic-speaking regions.
